

Robert Karlsson 2

You previously set a course record of 64, but broke that today with a course record of 62, 9-under, and it was the round of the day. How does that feel?

It feels great, obviously I played really, really well. It almost felt like I had more chances, I left a two on the line and had a few more chances, but obviously I'm not complaining. It was a great day.

You're top of the leaderboard and now in contention for tomorrow. What is the mindset heading into that?

I'm going to try keep doing what I'm doing, keep my mind where it needs to be for tomorrow. Hopefully I'm able to keep playing aggressive, you have to do that on the Champions Tour because the scoring is pretty low. I'll keep going with nothing to hold back and see what happens tomorrow.

I overheard some of the golf pros talk about you working with a swing coach that now is part of Greystone. What is that relationship like?

It's been great. We started in September of last year when I started turning around my game. We did work together in 2007 and 2015 also, but it's great to be back with Mark Blackburn and I'm very, very happy with how things are progressing.

Robert what do you think of your back-9 and you breaking the course record?

I played in a bunch of tournaments really, really well. A tournament where I lost in a playoff in Sioux Falls, I lipped out my first birdie putt on the playoff hole. I just have to keep doing my thing, I have to play better when it counts, last day but it's very tough on the leaderboard on the Champions Tour every day. It could go either way, but I'm happy to be up at the top.

Yesterday after your round after you shot 66 you said you wanted to keep trying today. What will that process be today?

I've got my son coming in from Charlotte so we're going to drive home tomorrow. I'm going to pick him up at the airport, little more relaxed today. It was a warm day as well so I'll hit some shots.
